

Dr. Ayse Erek is an art and design historian and urban researcher. Her current research focuses on urban imaginaries in art and design practices, ephemeral memory, material culture, and issues related to contemporary art and exhibition practices. She was a visiting scholar at the Amsterdam University School for Cultural Studies and a DAAD and TUBITAK postdoctoral research fellow at the Georg Simmel Centre for Metropolitan Studies. Her research interests include the histories of modern and contemporary art and design, design culture in Turkey, urban interventions and participatory practices in art and design, critical practices and histories of exhibition-making, cultural heritage, material culture in modern Turkey, Istanbul studies, and digital humanities.

ORCID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-6293-5106>